

Dr.M.K.Sudarshan, India

Dr.M.K.Sudarshan, MBBS (from Karnatak Medical College, Hubli), MD (from Banaras Hindu University), is presently Dean/Principal and Professor of Community Medicine, at Kempegowda Institute of Medical Sciences, Bangalore, INDIA. He is a member of WHO expert consultations on rabies and Government of India/NICD expert committee member on rabies. He is presently the President of Rabies in Asia (RIA) Foundation and founder president of Association for Prevention and Control of Rabies in India (APCRI). He is an honorary fellow of faculty of public health, Royal colleges of Physicians, United Kingdom and an elected fellow of National Academy of Medical Sciences, India. He is a recipient of Dr.BC Roy award of Government of Karnataka and Indian Medical Association, Bangalore. He has over 50 scientific publications on rabies in various national and international journals and an author of popular hand books on rabies for medical and veterinary professionals.
